Big Lunch ambassador, Barbara Windsor, celebrates five years of The Big Lunch with residents at the Cre8 Life Style Centre in Hackney Wick

EASTENDERS actress Barbara Windsor joined residents and volunteers in Hackney Wick to celebrate five years of The Big Lunch.

Visiting the Cre8 Life Style Centre on 2 June, Barbara Windsor joined in the community festivities – which were mirrored in gardens, streets and community spaces across the UK. She said: "Cre8 Life Style Centre put on a brilliant show with everyone getting involved and having fun together." Other places in the borough to take part in the Big Lunch, which is funded by the Big Lottery Fund, included Hobbs Place Estate, N1; Lockner Estate, N1, and Bannister House, E9. For more info and pics, see page 9.

MMR JAB ADVICE

WITH the school summer holiday fast approaching, parents are being urged to check their children are protected against measles by making sure they have had two doses of the measles, mumps and rubella (MMR) vaccine.

Many children starting school for the first time, or moving up to secondary school, can be vulnerable to catching infectious diseases if they are not fully immunised. Measles is highly infectious and can be life threatening. Figures show an increase in cases across the country – with particularly high levels in Hackney. Information leaflets have been sent to local schools, explaining how to ensure every child is vaccinated.

The MMR jab is free on the NHS and can be provided by a GP, but extra walk-in clinics have also been arranged to make sure as many children as possible can be seen before the new school year begins.

Cllr Jonathan McShane, Cabinet Member for Health,

Social Care, and Culture, said: "Many people wrongly assume that measles is a harmless childhood disease, but this is not the case. Tragically, someone recently died in Wales after contracting measles, so it's vital that we take this seriously."

"We're working closely with local GPs, Homerton hospital and other health agencies to encourage parents in Hackney to immunise and protect their children, so if in doubt, speak to your doctor."

Measles can be a very serious disease, leading to ear and chest infections, fits, diarrhoea and brain damage.

Parents who cannot remember what doses, if any, of the MMR vaccine a child has had, should check their personal child health record (the red book) or speak to their GP, health visitor, or school nurse.

HACKNEY THE REAL HEART OF LONDON

Message from the Mayor

'We were right to refuse to support Canalival'

YOU will probably have read reports about, or seen first hand, the aftermath of the Canalival event, which took place on Regents Canal on 1 June. I was appalled by the anti-social behaviour, noise and disgraceful amounts of litter that were left behind and I know that it was very unpleasant for residents who live nearby, so I wanted to take this opportunity to let you know what the Council is doing about it.

The Council actively supports well-managed events which bring the community together and provide residents with the chance to enjoy our vibrant borough but, despite the fact that canals do not fall under our jurisdiction, the Council and police raised concerns about the safety of the event with organisers as soon as we found out about it. Predictably some people were quick to criticise the Council and accuse it of being a killjoy, but what happened over the weekend shows that we were right to refuse to support Canalival and to advise that it should not go ahead.

Despite the organisers cancelling the event the day before, many people descended on Hackney anyway. Many stayed until the early hours of the morning and their behaviour was simply unacceptable. The next morning, Council staff spent over six hours collecting more than five tonnes of rubbish from the tow path, Broadway Market and surrounding roads. Local Council Taxpayers shouldn't have to foot the bill for this anti-social behaviour, so we intend to recover the cost of cleaning up from the organisers. The Council has also written to the organisers to express our concerns over how the event was handled.

The borough's night time economy and its increasing popularity as a visitor destination are vital to Hackney's local economy, but never at such a cost to our residents and local wildlife. This is one of the reasons we are going to consult with you on the future of the night time economy in Dalston over the summer, and it's also why we work closely with the police to ensure licensed premises and promoters act responsibly. It's our priority to make Hackney a safe, clean place to live – as well as an exciting, dynamic place to live, visit and work – and it's important that we get that balance right.

Julian Pipe

Borough Commander Matthew Horne with Patricia Brown and Ida Scoullios, who won awards for tackling anti-social behaviour in the Hawksley Court Estate

Unsung heroes

POLICE officers, residents, Council staff and volunteers were among those honoured at Hackney Police Borough Commander Matthew Horne's commendation ceremony.

Family and friends gathered to watch as those who have gone beyond the call of duty to make a difference in Hackney were celebrated at the Town Hall event on 21 May.

Cllr Sophie Linden, Deputy Mayor, joined Matthew Horne, Borough Commander, to present more than 30 local heroes with certificates to thank them for their hard work and dedication.

Among them were seven Hackney Homes residents, including David White, who was recognised for his work in reducing anti-social behaviour on Beechholme Estate and for encouraging residents to take responsibility for dog mess, making the area safer

“Working in partnership has shown that we can make a real change”

Members of Council staff were awarded for ensuring last year's BBC Radio 1 Hackney Weekend was crime-free for children to play.

Neighbours Patricia Brown and Ida Scoullios have also played a key role in tackling anti-social behaviour on Hawksley Court Estate. They run projects aimed at giving young people something to do, but also improving the relationship between younger and older residents.

Ida said: “Working in partnership with residents, officers and the police has shown that we can make a real change. We have built a strong relationship between the young people and adults alike on our estates.”

Members of Council staff were awarded for ensuring last year's BBC Radio 1's Hackney Weekend and Olympic torch relay/ One Hackney Carnival were crime-free and ran smoothly.

PCs Neal Hunwicks and Eleanor Madden were commended for their role in seizing drugs worth £4million. Council, police, probation and Crown Prosecution Service staff were also awarded for their work investigating gang-related crime.

PC Alex Edwards was singled out for his professionalism after he saved the life of a child who had stopped breathing. PC Edwards was off duty when he heard a mother shouting and screaming. His prompt actions in performing CPR saved the child's life; who began breathing before an ambulance arrived.

Chief Supt Matt Horne said: “What's remarkable is that so many of the commendations today reflect every day events in this amazing borough.”

Cllr Linden added: “There are hundreds of people who work tirelessly to make Hackney a safer place for all of us. They are, largely, unsung heroes, so events like this are an opportunity for us to say a big ‘thank you’ and let them know how much we appreciate them.”

Get fit – and swim

ACTOR and comedian David Walliams launched a new swimming challenge at London Fields Lido to encourage people to take the plunge and get fit.

The 'Britain's Got Talent' judge was joined by Olympic gold and silver medallists Rebecca Adlington and Keri-Anne Payne at the SwimBritain launch on 29 May.

They urged people to take the relay challenge for teams of four, with each person swimming a distance of 1,000metres.

“Swimming is refreshing, relaxing and a great escape from everyday life”

The event is open to swimmers of all abilities and will take place at 10 pools, and one open water venue, across the country between 31 August and 29 September. London Fields Lido is hosting the SwimBritain final on the last day of the challenge.

David, who has already completed numerous challenges, including a

140-mile swim along the River Thames and a cross Channel swim, said: "Swimming is refreshing, relaxing and a great escape from everyday life, as well as being good exercise, so I'm encouraging as many people as possible to find their nearest event, team up and give it a go."

Rebecca added: "It's just a fun challenge to get you involved in swimming and get people healthier and more active."

In Hackney, residents – under 18, over 60, or a disabled person and carer – can all take advantage of free swimming at Council-owned pools. For more info, visit: www.hackney.gov.uk/hackney-leisure-centres

Open East Festival at Queen Elizabeth Olympic Park

Celebrate the anniversary of London 2012 with a festival

ON the first anniversary of the London 2012 Olympic Games, the north of Queen Elizabeth Olympic Park is set to open for a packed weekend of entertainment and activity, art and food.

Open East Festival, which takes place over 27 and 28 July, is being hosted by the Barbican, Create London, and the London Legacy Development Corporation.

It will feature a host of international acts on the main music stage, including Toots and the Maytals, The Waterboys, Ondatrópica, and a supergroup of Malian artists including Vieux Farka Touré and Fatoumata Diawara.

While the Caught by the River stage will see live musical performances by DJ Don Letts, Wire, Stealing Sheep and The Rockingbirds. Young visitors will be entertained with a multitude of things to see, make and do.

There will be a number of Games-related performances to reflect last year's great summer of sport and culture, including Graeae theatre's version of Ted Hughes' 'The Iron Man' directed by Jenny Sealey, the woman behind the Paralympic Games Opening Ceremony.

Visitors will also be able to sample world flavours at 70 stalls by London's best street food sellers and producers at the Real Food Festival; sample beers from local breweries at the Ten Mile Beer Festival; or take time out for a picnic on the banks of the River Lea.

Tickets are priced at £6 for children and £9.50 for adults, with under fives going free. Booking fees apply. For more info, or to buy tickets, visit: www.ticketmaster.co.uk

Free boat tours for community groups at Queen Elizabeth Olympic Park

FREE boat tours of Queen Elizabeth Olympic Park are being offered to community groups this July and August.

The boat tours are an exclusive opportunity for local groups to have a look at the ongoing transformation work post the London 2012 Games, as parts of the north Park are set to open next month.

Dennis Hone, Chief Executive of the London Legacy Development Corporation, said: "We are taking to the waves and running boat tours of the Park for local groups. This means local people can still see what's going on."

The free boat tours are available to any youth, religious, community, charity or sports group in Hackney, Newham, Tower Hamlets and Waltham Forest.

The boat tours will last 90 minutes and pass along the River Lee Navigation from Three Mills (Bow) to the southern entrance of the Park; taking in the Stadium and the ArcelorMittal Orbit.

Tours will begin on 1 July and run until August. To book, call: 0800 023 2030; or e-mail: boatours@springboard-marketing.co.uk; with the name of the group and a preferred date and time, by 5pm on 14 June.

Hackney households get around 35 million pieces of unwanted mail each year. These weigh 900 tonnes and take 6,000 trees to make.

Lend a hand with Olympic Park events this summer

RESIDENTS who fancy getting involved with a whole series of exciting and high profile events in Queen Elizabeth Olympic Park this summer have a couple of weeks left to apply to become a volunteer.

Just as the Games makers were a huge part of the success of London 2012, organisers this year are calling on residents to help welcome visitors to the Park. Concerts, festivals, sports competitions and family events are lined up to celebrate the reopening of parts of the Park – including North Park, which is in Hackney – this summer.

Among the events taking place are Hard Rock Calling, Yahoo! Wireless Festival, Electric Daisy Carnival, Sainsbury's Anniversary Games, and Prudential RideLondon.

Volunteers of all ages and backgrounds are encouraged to apply. To find out more, visit: www.activenewham.org.uk/enterprise/volunteer_QEOP; or call: 020 3373 9000. The closing date for applications is 30 June.

Pollution team pipes up for national Noise Action Week

HACKNEY'S noise pollution team has been offering advice to residents during this year's national Noise Action Week. The team works year round to help residents affected by all types of noise, from dogs barking and construction work, to loud music from homes, pubs or clubs.

Noise Action Week, which took place from 20 to 25 May, aims to raise awareness of the help available. Cllr Sophie Linden, Deputy Mayor, said: "It's not just about clamping down on those who are being noisy – we also work with developers to make recommendations about how to minimise noise and to ensure that everyone understands their responsibilities."

Earlier this year, the Council successfully brought two cases to court where residents had complained about construction-related noise taking place outside permitted hours. In one case, the evidence provided by nearby residents was vital to the outcome, and the defendant was fined more than £2,000. In the second case, the construction company had to pay more than £18,000 in fines and costs.

from Egyptian dance, silversmithing and internet skills, to book-keeping, cake baking, and make-up classes.

The week was coordinated by the Council's Adult Learning Services, in partnership with Hackney Libraries, and community learning providers to promote the wide range of learning opportunities available. Thomas Ebulu-Eyuruntari, 70, attended a course entitled 'E-mail and internet: using PCs, smartphones and iPads for over 50s'.

He said: "I greatly enjoyed both ICT workshops I attended. The phobia of approaching and using PCs, smartphones and tablets to work on the internet vanished."

The week launched on 18 May with a day of previews and entertainment, while the Adult Learning Team were on hand to offer advice.

A NEW exhibition at Hackney Museum will give visitors a glimpse of migration to and from Britain over the past 100 years.

In collaboration with the Migration Museum Project, the free show features 100 photos by people of all backgrounds – including some from well-known photographers – who have come to Britain during the past century.

From adventurers and travellers, to people in search of work or education, as well as refugees escaping war, poverty or oppression, the images on display reflect them all.

Britain has not always welcomed newcomers, but mostly it has offered refuge and opportunity. The rich mix of communities which now exist here has brought with it new cultures, languages and food along with different skills.

Cllr Jonathan McShane, Cabinet Member for Health, Social Care and Culture, said: "In Hackney we have a proud history of celebrating the diversity that has always been part of our story."

The project aims to create a new museum, like New York's Ellis Island, in honour of the role that migrants have played in the making of Britain. It aspires to tell all the stories of migration, success and hard luck tales, comedies and tragedies, and promote a vision of Britain enriched by the endless energy and diversity of the people who have helped shape it.

ACTRESS Barbara Windsor joined a Hackney Wick street party this month to encourage people to meet – and eat – with their neighbours.

The Big Lunch is a UK-wide annual initiative that aims to get people to take part in a community event at least one day a year.

Visiting the Cre8 Life Style Centre on 2 June, the former EastEnders star and street party ambassador spoke to residents about how such events bring communities together.

She said: “The events get bigger and better every year and here in Hackney the Cre8 Life Style Centre put on a brilliant show with everyone getting involved and having fun together. That’s what The Big Lunch is all about.”

“The community really pulled together to lend a helping hand on the day”

More than 100 people attended the family fun day, which offered a chance to have a go at a range of different sports and musical activities.

Highlights included a workshop with the Pandemonium Drummers, stars of London 2012; soccer skills sessions; and live performances by local musicians and bands.

Organiser Ron Newman said: “The community has seen a remarkable transformation following our first event in 2012. I hope Barbara enjoyed the event.”

Hackney Homes also gave tenant and resident associations across the borough a £500 grant to help organise a number of Big Lunch events on estates. The parties also marked National Family Week (27 May to 2 June), and Neighbours Day (31 May) and highlighted the importance of community relationships and families.

Suna Shanahan, one of the organisers of a Big Lunch at Hobbs Place estate, N1, said: “We couldn’t help notice residents enjoying chatting to their neighbours for the first time. The community really pulled together to lend a helping hand on the day. There will be more to come.”

The Big Lunch is funded by the Big Lottery Fund and was developed by charity the Eden Project.

A SIX month cultural programme is being planned to celebrate improvements to the Narrow Way in Hackney Central, including a trial partial pedestrianisation.

The Council-run series of events will feature street food markets, art and craft workshops, live music, theatre shows, fetes, a big street lunch and other community projects organised by residents.

On 7 September, the Narrow Way is set to be taken over by a huge family festival produced by Mimbire – a Hackney-based circus and street theatre company – which will fill the area with interactive performances including live music, street dance and acrobatics. There will also be a host of free workshops, a bouncy castle, plenty of play equipment and outdoor games.

Local architects Studio Weave have been recruited to dramatically change the look of the Narrow Way, including painting temporary patterns on pathways and installing recycled seating along with planters to create a more welcoming place for people

Changes to D6 bus route

Changes to other bus routes

Changes to bus routes in the Hackney Central area

TO help boost Hackney Central and breathe new life into its high street, the Narrow Way at the north end of Mare Street will become part pedestrianised for a trial period from 15 June.

Changes have been made to the following bus routes: Routes 38, 48, 55, 106, 242 (24-hour), 253, 254, 394, N38 and N55 will no longer travel southbound (towards Shoreditch and Bethnal Green) on the Narrow Way and will be re-routed via Dalston Lane, Pembury Corner and Amhurst Road. Northbound services (towards Clapton and Homerton) will not be affected.

Route W15 will no longer serve Amhurst Road, Dalston Lane or the Narrow Way. Its last stop will be Hackney Town Hall and the first stop (towards Leyton) will be Morning Lane by Tesco.

Route D6 will terminate at Ash Grove (Mare Street by Victoria Park Road). Routes 48, 55, 106 and 254 provide alternatives along Mare Street. Routes 30 and 276 are unaffected.

The main change is that the existing stop in the Narrow Way (opposite Marks and Spencer) will be closed.

Bike to the future

MANY of the bike world's most influential figures gathered at Hackney Town Hall for the borough's cycling conference on 6 June.

Keynote speakers, including London Cycling Commissioner and journalist, Andrew Gilligan, and author of the 'Get Britain Cycling' report, Prof Phil Goodwin.

Hackney has been recognised as London's top cycling borough and was profiled in Prof Goodwin's report for the All Party Parliamentary Cycling Group earlier this year.

Speaking at the conference, Prof Goodwin noted Hackney's commitment to cycling, while recommending the need for intermediate and long term targets to sustainable transport initiatives.

Cllr Feryal Demirci, Cabinet Member for Neighbourhoods, also spoke at the conference.

She said: "It's fantastic to see that for the second year running we have managed to gather together so many of the UK's leading cycling experts."

"It is important that we host conversations like these in the borough, especially as one in seven of Hackney's residents cycle to work, which is the highest rate in the capital and outnumbers those who drive."

"What this shows is a keen commitment from our residents which we continue to build upon by educating young people, improving cycle infrastructure and making our roads safer."

Almost 150 people from all over the UK gathered to discuss topics including designing cycle schemes and balancing the needs of cyclists and pedestrians.

Recent projects to improve cycling infrastructure in Hackney have included making Goldsmith's Row car free, and the installation of new cycle racks with space for 10 bikes in one car parking space.

Safety has also been improved on Hackney's streets by implementing a 20mph speed limit on all residential roads and a trial scheme for all major roads shared with Islington.

Planting fruit and veg for a bumper harvest

BUXHALL Crescent residents have been growing fresh fruit and veg on their doorstep, helping to reduce their shopping bills in the process.

On 2 June, green fingered locals on the Hackney Wick street planted hanging

In addition, the residents made a raised bed for beans and carrots.

The event was part of the 'Resilience' project developed by Arcola Theatre in partnership with Newlon Fusion. It aims to get participants to think about wider sustainability, personal and social well-being issues, while helping people to save money.

Weekly sessions have been taking place on Buxhall Crescent since April, and organisers are hoping for a bumper harvest this summer.

News in brief

More trade for local businesses in borough parks and gardens

TWO Hackney businesses have started trading in borough parks thanks to a Council scheme that supports local enterprise.

The opportunity to run temporary catering facilities is being trialled in London Fields and Mark Street Gardens. Coppa Cart can be found near the Martello Street side of London Fields, from 8am to 8pm, seven days a week until March next year. The menu includes home made cordials, hotdogs, salads and ice cream sandwiches. Prices start at £1 for a cup of tea and £4 for a salad.

Coppa Cart is the trading name of Lardo, a restaurant on Richmond Road.

Moto Yogo will be selling organic frozen yoghurt with toppings and cold drinks from a reconditioned milk float at Mark Street Gardens, from Tuesday to Friday, between 11.30am to 6.30pm, until 30 September. Prices start from £2.80.

Moto Yogo is a new start up company based in Hackney Wick. Both suppliers will use the Council's local employment scheme 'Ways into Work' if they need to hire additional staff.

East End Film Festival

25 June -10 July, various locations

THE East End Film Festival returns with films and events over two weeks – its longest ever run.

With an emphasis on new filmmakers and digital visionaries, the festival highlights the area's revolutionary film, music and arts output as well as talent from across the world.

From the UK, Oscar nominated director Mike Figgis's murder mystery 'Suspension Of Disbelief' screens; as does 'We Are The Freaks', a high octane teen comedy; 'Satellite Boy' (pictured) about a boy abandoned in a Australian cinema; and 'Discoverdale', a fly-on-the-wall mockumentary about a singer who believes his father is Whitesnake's David Coverdale.

The festival closes with US star studded drama 'Lovelace', the tragic story of Linda Lovelace, the most famous porn actress of the 1970s.

Competition

BAFTA award-winning cartoon 'Ben and Holly's Little Kingdom' is coming to Hackney Empire for its first ever stage show.

The Little Kingdom – where everything is very small – is home to Princess Holly and her best friend Ben. Holly (a young fairy still learning the magic ropes) sometimes finds her tricks do not work, while Ben is an elf who doesn't do magic but is very good at making things. In this new musical adventure the duo have fun cleaning up their ladybird's messy cave, take a trip to 'The Big World' with the tooth fairy and plan a surprise but problematic party for King Elf.

'Ben and Holly's Little Kingdom' comes from the makers of 'Peppa Pig' and is a beautiful story of enchantment and wonder. It takes place at Hackney Empire, 291 Mare Street, E8, between 6-7 July. For more, call: 020 8985 2424; or visit: www.hackneyempire.co.uk/benandholly Hackney Today is offering VIP tickets for one family to see the show on 6 July and meet Ben and Holly afterwards.

For a chance of winning, send a postcard by 20 June to 'Ben and Holly's Little Kingdom' competition, Hackney Today, Hackney Town Hall, Mare Street, E8 1FB. Alternatively, e-mail: htnews@hackney.gov.uk. All entries must include a full name, address and contact number.

REVIEW

Hot Tub Cinema

Until 29 September, Rockwell House, 10-14 Hewett Street, Shoreditch, EC2A 3NN

SET the scene: a Shoreditch rooftop, a Pimms cocktail and enough sun to shake a stick at. Perfect, right? Not quite. Chuck a big juicy cherry on top and you're there: hot tubs.

Hot Tub Cinema well and truly blows movie night on the sofa out of the water with a cinematic experience you won't forget any time soon. The Summer of Tubs season, launched on 6 June, perfectly coincided with some glorious weather.

When you climb the stairs and enter the rooftop of Rockwell House, it hits you – pod-like tubs are huddled together and you realise that you're going to get near-naked in front of strangers.

Doors opened an hour before the movie started, so we headed to the bar to sample one of a long list of fantastic cocktails to do away with our nerves. A masters of ceremonies informed us the movie would be starting soon, and we were directed towards the changing rooms. The water was sumptuously inviting and all our qualms slipped away as the movie started. The novelty was a bit much to handle though, so although 1960s classic 'The Italian Job' was showing, I struggled to give it 100 per cent – being in a hot tub is somewhat distracting. Make the most of waiter service from the bar and sit back and enjoy a luxurious evening under the stars. Next showing is 'Withnail and I' on 13 June. Going for the gold

BSIX college has been awarded the 'gold standard' by a leading business management organisation.

The Clapton college was recognised by Investors in People, which supports businesses to improve performance by transforming the way they work with people.

Achieving the gold status means that BSix is in the top three per cent of the 45,000 UK organisations that currently hold Investors in

“The college has taken the good practice that it had put in place and has simply taken it to the next level”

People accreditation.

Gill Atmeare, assessor for Investors in People, commented in her final report: “BSix was an impressive organisation given what had been achieved in a relatively short period of time.

“In the three years since the last assessment, the college has continued on its journey and has taken the good practice that it had put in place and has simply taken it to the next level in every aspect.”

In other good news, BSix is celebrating its 10-year anniversary, which inspired staff and students to delve into the college's rich past.

Their research was aided by local historians who revealed King's Place – a grand mansion and residence of King Henry VIII – once stood on the college site in Kenninghall Road.

The college has commissioned a blue plaque to commemorate some of the key historical figures that lived in the former Brooke House, which was demolished in 1954 to make way for a new secondary school.

News in brief

Keep children big and strong with free meals at school

PARENTS and carers of children in Hackney are being urged not to miss out on free school meals.

Statistics show that, nationally, 14 per cent of those eligible for free meals do not claim them and are missing out on an average saving of £390 a year.

Cllr Rita Krishna, Cabinet Member for Children's Services and Education, said: “Welfare cuts are affecting a lot of families in Hackney, so it is more important than ever that residents make sure they are receiving all the benefits they are entitled to. School meals are a great way to make sure children eat a healthy, balanced lunch, which is shown to improve concentration. Some parents might not realise they are entitled to free lunches, so I would urge anyone on a low income or who receives some kind of benefit to find out if they qualify.”

Clapton students spend a day with City of London Police

YEAR 12 students from Clapton Girls' Academy gained an insight into the life of a police officer when they spent a day with the City of London force.

The girls are studying for a BTEC in Public Services and the visit to Bishopsgate Police Station – arranged on 21 May by local education charity Inspire! – was designed to relate their classwork to the real world and give them a better understanding of career routes and jobs in the public sector.

Inspector Martin Colligan hosted the day, which covered topics such as why laws are needed, public order, weapons use, and a tour of the custody suite.

Hackney partners with Suffolk to make a change in children's education

SCHOOLS in Hackney and Suffolk are joining forces to share expertise that helped to turn around education in Hackney.

The agreement follows a 10-month inquiry into Suffolk's under-performing schools. By working together it is hoped that Hackney's ambitious and focused approach to education will help to boost results in Suffolk.

Cllr Rita Krishna, Cabinet Member for Children's Services and Education, said: “We are happy to develop a more formal relationship with Suffolk County Council to help raise educational standards in the county.

“Our success was brought about by a huge collective effort in which the whole community joined, willing Hackney's children to succeed.

“We are pleased that Suffolk County Council, in agreeing to formalise our partnership, recognises and shares the strength of our ambition for all children.”

A report by the Royal Society for the encouragement of Arts, Manufactures and Commerce (RSA) points to these improvements and argues that gains can be achieved if a similarly ambitious and focused approach is taken in Suffolk.

Hackney is considered one of the most improved education authorities in England – 93 per cent of secondary pupils and 82 per cent of primary pupils now attend a school rated as 'good' or 'outstanding' by Ofsted.

The new Hackney-Suffolk partnership will see a cultural, professional and educational exchange programme set up to benefit both areas – designed to enrich pupils' learning, broaden teachers' professional expertise and strengthen leadership at all levels. A new exchange programme for teachers tipped to one day become heads will also be set up through the partnership.

Ema's digitally enhanced images are an original and innovative take on Hackney

THESE images were taken by YH World photographer Ema Abdy, 19.

Ema said: "I shot these photos to practice high dynamic range – this is a digital technique whereby multiple exposures of the same scene are layered and merged using image-editing software to create a more realistic image or a dramatic effect. I chose the tower because it is a big part of history in Hackney and many people know nothing about it."

Barry McGuigan's Boxing Academy launched a health and fitness programme at The Edge youth club

RESIDENTS got a chance to meet boxing legend Barry McGuigan during a get fit session at a Hackney youth club.

The former world featherweight champion visited Woodberry Down youth club The Edge on 28 May to launch a health initiative supported by the Council and London Legacy Development Corporation.

The programme, developed by the Barry McGuigan Boxing Academy (BMBA), aims to inspire people to think about their health and fitness by offering practical advice and exercise tips.

Nearly 100 people took part in a series of get fit sessions over the course of a week, including a mixed group of children and parents, a women and girls' class, and one for lads and dads.

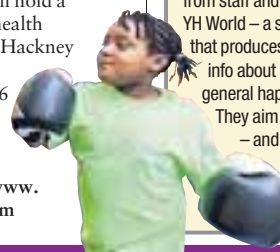

They featured a pop-up ring for non-contact boxing training, boxing-specific footwork to improve agility, and bodyweight conditioning circuits. There was also support on staying motivated, living a healthier lifestyle and eating well.

Barry said: "The event was a great success and we are privileged to have the opportunity to be a part of the legacy that London 2012 created. Sport has the power to inspire all to make a real difference to their health and it was great to see so many people taking advantage of the initiative."

BMBA will hold a sports and health event at the Hackney Marshes Centre on 26 June from 2-7.30pm.

Martial arts action film shoot

By Azeem Mustafa, 25

YHWORLD recently ran a free multimedia training course for unemployed 16 to 24-year-olds looking to make a start in the creative industries.

The group produced a martial arts action film entitled 'Unit 21', believed to be the first movie in this genre to be shot in Hackney.

It follows the story of John, a delivery boy, who walks into the wrong building complex one day and is beset by muggers, ninjas and psychopaths.

Directed by Azeem Mustafa, the film stars Lewis Williams, leader of the course and previous editor of the YHWorld website.

It also stars Joel Witter, a talented filmmaker and writer, as well as Mr Furious, an up-and-coming DJ. To view the short film, visit: www.youtube.com/officemustafa

A Turkish summer in Hackney

By Adnan Boyraz, 17

THE UK's biggest Anatolian cultural festival kicked off on 8 June with a grand opening at Clissold Park.

The free festival celebrates Turkish culture and runs until 16 June. Founded in 2006, the Anatolian Community Association (ACA) is a voluntary, non-profit organisation that aims to educate and share the Anatolian culture with UK youth. ACA has been organising the summer cultural fete since 2007 and all the funds raised go to a children's education charity.

This year's array of events will include a sword and shield dance show, oil wrestling with national champion Ahmet Tasci, a performance of traditional shadow play 'Karagöz and Hacivat', plus a cooking contest with celebrity chef Emine Beder. For more info, visit: www.anatolianfest.com

Celebrate national Carers Week in Hackney, from 10 to 16 June, with a series of free events around the borough

Lend a caring hand

St Joseph's Hospice is hosting a series of free events from 10 to 16 June to celebrate the contribution carers make to the community.

On 10 June, a support group will be launched for carers with a pampering day featuring complementary therapies, live music and food. Additionally, the director of Anti-Slavery International and this year's Mastermind champion, Aidan McQuade, will host a general knowledge quiz.

On 11 June, the Mare Street hospice teams up with City and Hackney Carers Centre for the Hackney Annual Carers Conference. This will be an opportunity to find out about support services in the borough for people who look after ill friends and relatives.

On 12 June, St Joseph's and Marie Curie Cancer

Care will bring together carers and representatives from national and local organisations to discuss how to improve end of life outcomes for patients in East London.

On 13 June, there will be a welfare and benefits information drop in; followed by a social work advice drop in on 14 June.

The events form part of Carers Week, which aims to improve the lives of carers and the people they look after. There are an estimated 6.5million carers in the UK. Many give up an income, future employment prospects, and pension rights to become an unpaid carer for a relative.

Health watchdog launched

A NEW health watchdog is being launched in Hackney next month to ensure residents' views are heard. Healthwatch Hackney will ask people their opinion of local services via telephone surveys, its website and face to face meetings. The organisation is also keen to recruit volunteers to help collect comments at a community level and to sit on its board. Emma Craig, Healthwatch Hackney chair, said: "This is a brilliant opportunity for local people to have their say. We are working with key stakeholders such as the Hackney and City Clinical Commissioning Group (CCG), the new Complaints and Advocacy Service, and the Council, so we are placed to make a difference to health and social care in the borough."

The launch takes place at St Joseph's Hospice on 11 July. For free tickets, call: 020 7923 1962; or visit: www.healthwatchhackney.eventbrite.com.

The deadline to apply to be on the board is 24 June, for an informal chat about the position, call: 020 7923 8351.

Drive to recruit health visitors

THE NHS is looking to recruit nurses and midwives to support children and families as health visitors. They will take on a variety of responsibilities from offering advice on family health and minor illnesses, to providing referrals for vulnerable young children. The recruitment drive is designed to support a national 'healthy child programme', which works to prevent social exclusion and deprivation, reduce inequalities and tackle public health issues.

The role would suit those looking for a new challenge with an interest in community nursing. Applications close on 14 June. For more info call: 020 7862 8601; or visit: <http://ncl.hee.nhs.uk/health-visiting/>

Reduce medicine waste and help save the NHS millions of pounds

RESIDENTS are being asked to help the NHS save money by thinking carefully about the medicines they use.

An estimated £39.4million is lost annually in London through medicine waste.

As a result, it is being recommended that patients only order the medicine they need, return unwanted medicines to a pharmacy for safe disposal, and take medicines with them when they go to hospital.

Dr Haren Patel, NHS City and Hackney Clinical Commissioning Group, said: "Unwanted medicines in the home may mean that patients are not getting the benefit they could from their prescriptions.

"It also represents a large amount of waste. It is estimated that at any one time £90million of unused prescription medicines are being retained in individual's homes across the UK. With a few simple considerations, patients could help save the NHS millions each year.

"We want patients on repeat prescriptions to think about what they are ordering and only ask for what they need and are running out of.

"Any of the medicines can be dispensed when needed at a later date, but once medicines have been dispensed, they cannot be recycled."

1. Salvation Army members marching to Congress Hall, 1965; 2. A flyer for Jubilee Day services; 3. The view along Linscott Road, c1935; 4. A flyer for August Bank Holiday events at the hall, 1886

CONTINUING the story from last edition's history page, after the London Orphan Asylum left its Clapton home and moved to Watford in 1871, the premises were put on the market.

The sales brochure gave a glowing description of the estate as 'one of the ornaments of the metropolis with its handsome chapel ... together with beautifully planted lawn and ample recreation ground', but no buyer could be found and over the next decade the land was gradually sold off for development.

In 1881, the Salvation Army raised donations of £15,000 to purchase the old school building, which was renovated and adapted for use as its national barracks and Congress Hall, with much of the building work undertaken by the Salvationists themselves.

The alterations cost over £8,000 and included the demolition of the chapel and excavation of a grass quadrangle to create a massive hall to seat over 4,500, roofed with wood and iron and lit by 54 panels of stained glass. The wings which formally housed orphans were now home to 300 Salvation Army cadets, with classrooms on the ground floor, workrooms below and bedrooms above. By 1903, the hall had the largest attendance of any place of worship in Hackney, with nearly 1,000 attending morning service, over 1,500 in the evening and 3,000 later at night. It was also the site of major events in the Salvation Army's history, such as the lying-in-state of its founder General William Booth in August 1912, when 65,000 mourners filed past the coffin to pay their last respects.

Films were also a great attraction, with the first screenings in Clapton said to have taken place at the Hall. The Salvation Army had its own film-making department, but a mixed programme was often shown. Any criticism of this was met by the riposte that many who came for fun on Saturday night returned to pray on Sunday.

Cadet training at Congress Hall ended in 1929 when a new college was built in Denmark Hill, South London, and three years later the Clapton buildings were renovated at a cost of £30,000. In the 1970s, the Salvation Army moved to new premises in Lower Clapton Road and much of the old Congress Hall was demolished. The great central portico and its adjoining colonnades were left roofless and rotting, despite being listed on the national Buildings at Risk register.

Neighbouring Clapton Girls' Academy acquired the land for new buildings for sports, languages, science and technology. In 2003, funding was secured to restore the portico and the addition of the Portico City Learning Centre to house the school's computing and technology hub, which opened in September 2010.

From Mrs Salmon's girls' school of the early 1630s (see issue 306); through Newcome's famed 18th century school for boys; the Victorian London Orphan Asylum (issue 307); the Salvation Army's training college; to today's Clapton Girls' Academy, this site at the end of Linscott Road has provided education for children and young people for nearly 400 years.

The Mayor and Councillors

Councillors are elected by Hackney residents and serve for four years. The last borough elections were in May 2010.

Councillors have a range of responsibilities, including helping to oversee the Council and its services. They hold advice surgeries where residents can meet their local representative and ask them to take up issues that may be of concern.

Generally they can help with Council related matters, but if the issue is the responsibility of another person or organisation, councillors can often point people in the right direction and tell residents who they need to see.

Hackney has 57 councillors representing areas called wards – illustrated in the map opposite.

To check which councillor covers your area, or confirm surgery times, call: 020 8356 3373. More info: www.hackney.gov.uk/l-mayor-cabinet-councillors.htm

The Mayor

Jules Pipe

Hackney has an executive Mayor, Jules Pipe, who is not a councillor, but is directly elected by the entire borough. The Mayor is the political leader of the Council, overseeing the budget and all Council services. Civic and ceremonial duties are undertaken by the Speaker of the Council who is elected annually from the borough's 57 councillors. The current Speaker is Cllr Michael Desmond.

A healthy eating programme from Shoreditch Trust

www.shoreditchtrust.org.uk

IN this edition, Shoreditch Trust presents a recipe from its healthy eating programme which aims to help residents produce healthy, tasty and seasonal food throughout the year.

This typical Middle Eastern dish is made with chickpeas which contain protein, fibre and folic acid, and tahini which – as well also containing protein – is a rich source of calcium, iron, manganese and omega fats.

Claudia Manchanda, Healthy Eating Manager for the Trust, said: "It's great as a dip with pitta bread or vegetable sticks and makes a great filling for sandwiches, mixed with a little salad or roasted vegetables."

Homemade houmous

Makes 4-6 portions

Preparation time
15 mins

Cooking time
0 mins

Ingredients

- 400g can/home cooked chickpeas rinsed and drained
- 2 tablespoons tahini (sesame paste)
- 1 garlic clove
- 1 lemon, juice only
- 4 tablespoons water/milk/live yoghurt
- 2 tablespoons olive oil
- Pinch of cumin (optional)
- Fresh parsley and coriander (optional).

some dry cumin seeds or cumin powder and sprinkle on top just before serving

- For a bit of variety, try blending the houmous with fresh parsley or coriander. You can also roast the garlic clove and add it to the houmous before blending for a more mellow flavour.

Method

- Put the chickpeas in a blender or food processor with the tahini, garlic, lemon juice, water/milk/live yoghurt, cumin and olive oil. Blend until smooth, or it reaches the consistency you're after
- To serve, drizzle with olive oil alongside freshly sliced vegetables (carrots, peppers, cucumber, celery) or toasted pitta bread
- To give aromatic depth to the dish, toast
